BRASS BEDS, ENAMELED BEDS, SPRINGS, MATTRESSES

Sixth annual midsummer sale begins tomorrow with 38 styles brass beds and 60 styles enameled beds, offered at the most attractive prices ever quoted in Washington

During this sale a special price is quoted on every Brass and Enamel Bed in stock. The sale affords the biggest savings of the whole year. It is the one time in each twelve months when every style is offered at a deeply cut price. The values quoted are the very same prices asked for the beds regularly all the year round. Investigation will reveal the fact that we undersell every dealer in Washington at our regular prices. How much greater the bargains, then, at the cut prices named for this sale only. Now is the time to buy. Beds, Mattresses, Springs reserved now upon payment of a small deposit. If you're not quite ready to install the pieces, we'll store them free of charge. Buy now. AROUND THE CITY

An ancient black man with twisted legs and two canes was leaning along F street.
Nobody noticed him until he reached the Treasury flagging.Then another old colored man, who was working on the street, straightened up as if to get the misery out of his back.
Maybe he realized what it must be to have twisted legs. For after watching the ancient black man for a bit he dived into the pocket of his blue overalls, took out a bag, picked from it a coin, and then went over to the bricks and put it in the old cripple's hands.It wasn't much of an incident. Certainly not. Still—It made the woman who saw it go her way stronger than ever in her faith that the millennium is lying in loose pieces all around the world.

If only we could put the bits together!

A black skirted young woman was going along the street with the cuffs of her sleeves waist pinned above her elbows.
They were doubtless good, useful e-bows, but beauty wasn't their strong point."What do you suppose makes 'em all go around showing their knuckle-bones like that, for? huh?"

"Oh, they have a tradition among 'em that elbows have dimples just like you read about gold at the end of a rainbow——when they had turned the corner that young woman stopped before a plate glass window to be quite, quite sure that her elbows were all right. And, as she couldn't possibly see them, she gave a sigh of relief and shipped on.A woman pressed a button, and when the car passed her corner she got what you might call pipping hot.These conductors are just bearing with you and I'm not going to stand it any longer.

I never saw such carelessness—"You are always so hilariously cheerful, dear," laughed the woman with her.
"Conductors are human like the rest of us. And you know you broke my best dish for me this morning."The one and only curious incident about this small and everyday incident was that the bad tempered woman was stout oh, ever so stout, and the good natured one was a living, breathing bone.Which seems to show that the laugh and grow fat adage has its flaws.A man who showed his fondness for the good things of this life, so far as he could get them, was crossing Pennsylvania avenue last night. As he reached the south side his way was blocked by a crowd that swarmed around a man who was preaching penance and prayer.The "earth, earthy" man worried his way through the jam and was on its outer edge when the speaker said something that caught his interest and brought him to a standstill.

And when the preaching was over the man said to the person who was going around for contributions:"I haven't heard that sort of spiel since my mother used to get it off on me. Here's the price of five beers."His words implied that he was making an appropriate offering. And, well, really who knows?She had on a girly-girly white frock and a Roman sash; her hair was gray and she had two chins. And she said, loud enough for the whole street to hear."No, indeed, you wouldn't catch me marrying the best man living."The woman in the white duck with the merry widow anchored to the left side of her panderous must have been notable for her candor."No, I don't hate 'em. I'm sorry for 'em, on account of Uncle Ed. And you know what a good chap he was when he was sober. I say that when a fellow's born with a love for drink he can't help himself, any more than you can't help your stuttering."

"Why, Lucy Blank?"

"I'm right. You can't talk straight to save your life! You got it from yourmother. And your Mazie has got it from you. You were all born that way. It's in your blood."It was plain to see that the white duck woman had no faith in what the wise men call "The Eternal Will."

Maybe she never even heard of it!

NEW ZEALAND'S WHITE ISLAND

Always Enveloped in Clouds of Steam—Strange Lakes.

From the British Australian.

White Island derives its name from the clouds of white steam in which it appears to be continually enveloped. Its area is only 600 acres and its height about 850 feet above sea level.In form and color it is like a reposing camel, while its interior, with its gray, weather beaten, almost perpendicular cliffs, recalls the Coliseum at Rome.Overhanging the southern landing place stands a column of rock closely resembling a sentinel, which has been dedicated to the memory of Capt. Cook. The water of the island is of a pale green hue, and anything dipped into it becomes of a red brick color. The fumes of sulphur are always plainly perceptible.On a moonlight night a wonderful light is afforded to anyone who will sit in an open boat in one of the lakes of the island. Covering an area of fifty acres is an immense cauldron, hissing and snorting and sending forth volumes of poisonous steam, while all chances of egress appear to be denied by the steep, silent and gloomy cliffs.

EVENTS AT BOYDS.

Special Correspondence of The Star.

BOYDS, Md., August 8, 1908.

More than 2,000 people from Montgomery and Frederick counties, Md., and from Virginia and Washington attended the picnic given at Barnesville yesterday by the St. Mary's Catholic Church.This attendance did not come up to the figures of previous years, as there are often 5,000 people at this affair, which affords a clearing house for crop talk, political gossip and other matters dear to the heart of the Maryland farmer. The picnic, however, was not only a social but a financial success, in spite of threatening weather.In the afternoon there was some tournament riding, Roger Day of Frederick delivering the charge to the knights and State Senator Lee Blair making the cor-onation address. In the professional class, J. Hickman Ganley of Boyds won first prize and crowned Miss May Lenhart of Germantown as queen; second, Clarence M. Griffith, who crowned his daughter, Miss Gladys Griffith; third, Clarence Offutt, who crowned Miss Lucille Clements of Dickersons; fourth, G. W.
Rickett, who chose no lady for his crown.In the amateur class, W. H. Wilson won first prize, crowning Miss Grace Larman of Sidel; second came Lloyd J.
Bathum, who put the dissonant word Miss Anna Gardiner's fair head; third rode the good knight Edward Brosius, who honored Miss Myrtle Thomas, and fourth came Clay Carlin of Sidel, who crowned Miss Carrie Whip.Dancing occupied the afternoon and kept up until late at night. Refreshments were sold on the grounds, the following ladies having charge: Mrs. John W. Holland, Miss E. Hayes, Mrs. C. W.
Smoot, Mrs. Alexander Jamison and Mrs.
Charles Erosius. Horatio Trundle was chairman of the dancing committee. Mr.
A. B. Shreve acted as chief marshal of the tournament, his aids being T. B.
Shreve and C. Jones. The judges were Henry L. Black, Phil Kessler and Silas Ward.
